Vedette Directory,

UTAH.

Area, 100, 382 square miles—Population 90,000.

The Capital, Great Salt Lake City, (Population, 17,000,) situate on the great highway westward, in the grand centre of the golden circle comprising Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico and Arizona. The City is one of the most beautiful in the Union, and the largest between St. Louis and Sacramento. Its scenery of mountains is majestic, and its view of islands and Lake is peerlessly picturesque.

The City proper is a square of three miles each side, and contains 260 blocks, of 10 acres each, (each divided into 8 lots,) and 4 public squares. Its level streets, running due east and west, and north and south, are 128 feet wide, with shade trees along either sidewalk, and living streams of water flowing by both sides of every street, to irrigate the fruit trees and gardens.

The Territory is divided into twenty counties, the towns of which range from 6,000 to 600 population.

Our Generals.

[From the Chicago Republican]

We regret to see our Generals so backward in returning to civil life, and so backward in resuming the commissions as Lieutenants, Captains and Majors in the regular army, which some of them laid aside for higher places among the volunteers. It is true that many officers must be retained in the service. We must keep troops enough to protect loyal emigrants to the Southern States, and to maintain there due obedience to the laws; and discreet and able commanders will be required to direct them. The Lieutenant General has already indicated who are to be retained for this purpose by his order which we published several days ago. That order provided for keeping in the service one ninety Generals of volunteers in addition to the fourteen Generals belonging to the regular army. This will leave about a hundred and seventy-five who are not thought to be needed.

Now, it would be a rather creditable thing for these hundred and seventy-five generals not to wait any longer, but to resign their commissions at once. They know that there is no more fighting for them to do, and that the country cannot afford to pay their salaries. Why not, then, face these facts as gallantly as they have faced the lines of the enemy? Most of them had respectable avocations before the war? Why not go back to them again? Some of them hold commissions in the regular army. Are these not aware that there is a noble manhood in descending to a lower range of duty and of power? The man who cheerfully and without the thought of repining, exchanges the stars of a general for the bars of a captain is a person whose magnanimity of soul many a hero of the battle might well look up to with curious admiration.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. [illegible], 1865.

The Positive Franchise.

One of the greatest blessings pertaining to a Republican form of Government, and one than which none is more highly prized by its liberal minded subjects, is the extension of the suffrage to all of its citizens deemed worthy to exercise its high prerogative.

Of late years, there has been considerable agitation on this subject, in the whirl of excitement occasioned by which the public mind has been exercised to a degree unprecedented in the annals of our national history.

The records of not very remote electoral contests, teem with evidences of the good resulting from the use of this privilege by not only our loyal citizens, but also by our brave and patriotic soldiers, concerning whose legitimate right to it's employment many and powerful arguments have been so eloquently advanced as to secure for them and the cause of freedom a most decided and deserved triumph.

The enemies of progress and of our "brave boys in blue" have exhausted, and may still continue to employ, the entire vocabulary of slang phrases and vulgar epithets invented by congenial minds, to express their pusillanimous scorn and illaudable depreciation of the merits of our soldier patriots, who, whether adorned with the epaulettes of distinctive honor, or serving in the serried ranks, have presented a bold and defiant front alike against the armed enemies in the field and the villainous traitors at the ballot box.

Their vote aided, to a considerable extent, in re-electing "the man of the people," the "savior of his country," by four hundred thousand majority, over the ambitious candidate of the degenerate faction, whose fratricidal policy had involved the country in debt and incalculable loss, and aided in the accouchment of the unnatural progeny, before whose execrable altar the boasted chivalry of Southern Slavocracy bent the servile knee, and, in a fit of mad enthusiasm, dedicated more than life to consummate its purposes "most foul" The unmistakeable growth of an anti-slavery spirit, and the extension of territory, wealth, and power of the anti-slavery party, as well as the election of the self-made and unconquerable Lincoln, filled them with alarming apprehensions and galling fears, on which the ambitious demagogues of their nullyfying creed played with deadly effect, and induced their concurrence in the mad scheme to rend in twain the consolidated nationality of a government framed to secure to every loyal and honest citizen, and to the oppressed of every clime who may seek the hospitality of our shores, the priceless gem of Liberty.

Regarding the extension of the suffrage to all classes of men as a boon intended by those who gave form and shape to the Constitution, and as in strict consonance with the entire spirit of that glorious instrument of liberty, we are certainly opposed to any restrictive measures on those entitled to vote, on the simple grounds of their religious or political faith being unpopular, or at variance with the faith of other and more powerful parties. The ballot-box is free to all citizens, and there it is the public must show its approval or disapproval of such tenets by the election or rejection of its representative candidates. But when there is every evidence that such faith is opposed to the genius and letter of our constitution and laws, and that it is inherited by rash enthusiasts whose policy it is to introduce a system of vassalage, dangerous alike to the commonwealth and the perpetuity of our heritage, as freemen; and who would stoop to any means, however vile, for the consummation of their nefarious purpose, it becomes a question of importance whether some restrictions should not be put upon it, [illegible] with its potency for evil. "The dog that [illegible] master should be muzzled," is a pertinent and truthful maxim, though [illegible]

The preamble to the constitution explicitly states that the object in framing the Constitution was "to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," and any system, whether religious or political, —whether palmed upon the world as Mormonism or Democracy, (as exemplified in their degenerated character of to-day in the Brighamite and Copperhead fraternities,) that posesses constitutional defects at variance with the eternal principles of justice and right so ably set forth in the portion of "the preamble" quoted, such as the systems of these fraternities do, should be watched with the eagle-eye of suspicion, and the public mind carefully guarded from their insidious approaches.

Interesting from Montana.

HELENA, M. T., August 27th, 1865.

Ed. Vedette—I believe in a former letter I mentioned the fact that this would of necessity be an "occasional" correspondence. As much of the time of your humble servant has been taken up in the mountains, away from such conveniences as are needed to indite a letter for the "public press."

VIRGINIA AND ITS FUTURE

is a theme upon which I think one may speculate without necessarily exciting the ire of her more sensible citizens to any very alarming extent. As I hinted in a former communication, she is becoming every day more fully convinced that quartz is her main dependence. Alder after the present season must be abandoned to the capitalist and the single-handed miner succomb to monopoly. Then how anxiously await and how welcome the sound of thundering machinery along this rugged cañon to the ears of property-holders, none but those who have invested heavily can tell. Few if any look beyond this consummation at the future of Virginia.

True, if one-eight of the quartz leads now staked off prove worth the attention of capital, Virginia might yet rival her namesake of Nevada. But who can tell her future? May not the immense trade of these mountains yet call for much greater conveniences? And may it not induce capital to invest in those conveniences in time, by way of railroad, which would connect the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific with iron bands? Should the mouth of the Yellowstone prove accessable for light draft boats eight months in twelve, it would cost comparatively little to construct a road up that broad and fertile valley to Virginia City. From Virginia to the confluence of Snake and Clear Water rivers (the head of navigation,) a distance of three hundred and forty-five miles, it has been ascertained to be not only practicable but entirely feasible. Wood and water abounds in great abundance the entire route, while the road would extend for four hundred miles through a succession of mining camps, the richest of Montana and Idaho. These facts, hastily thrown together, will give the reader a faint idea of what Virginia may yet become.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT QUARTZ, and quartz "Flats" and "Snarps." The whole surface of the country is now undergoing a sort of scratching process by the "Sharps" and their men hired for the purpose. The mountains are filled with them far and near. Every stone that resembles the "mother of gold" or silver is turned over, carefully examined, and the dirt thrown off a few inches from the surface. Any further being found, the country is staked off in the direction the supposed lead ought to run. The next step is to name it; and as the manager of the "outfit" has a memorandum of names used by the party, he stakes each one a claim who is of course required to deed back upon receiving "a valuable considerable" (?) the claim so stacked off to Sharp. No further labor under the laws of this Territory is necessary for Mr. Sharp to hold said lead as "real estate" during his natural life and how much longer deponent sayeth not. But the "Flat" must bleed to carry on his business successfully. How he bleeds, one or two instances will suffice to show. A friend who had after some difficulty reached Virginia this season was offered a claim upon a lead much talked of, and bought after asking the advice of acquaintances, what he supposed to be, "a good thing." Upon reaching the aforesaid claim and "sinking" to the depth of ten feet he struck the lead, which proved to be a fine quality of pipe clay Another friend in search of his fortune amongst the quartz hills of Montana purchased a claim in the same manner, but after riding some twelve miles into the mountain his streak turned out a common quality of building rock nothing more nor less. The specimens shown in both cases were undoubtedly but "float-rock," which can be found in nearly every cañon in the country.

"THE VIGILANTES"

and their mysterious existence is about to find a historian in the reputed editor of the Post. Whether the gentleman himself was an "Eye witness' to all the horrors of that time; or whether he gathers the material for his work from the "record" we can only judge from the bills. Whether the actors in those tragedies are seeking to make an explanation to the people through this medium, or whether (if a correct history) they are fully prepared to avow their responsibility, is a matter known only to themselves. The impression is getting abroad that the time has come however when organized law should assume its sway; when the executors of that law should learn to do their whole duty under it That the "Vigilantes," whatever mistakes they may have made were of incalculable benefit to the country, cannot be denied. But would it not redowned more to [illegible] organization (which they deem necessary for self-protection) they now should gather around the seat of justice and strengthen the hands of its chosen ministers? [illegible] thinks it could and so think those who are heartily tired of support organized law in this territory and its officers.

THE SUICIDE OF JUDGE BELL, formerly of Colorado, more recently a member of the Montana Legislature, this afternoon, perplexes the minds of his oldest friends. Mr. Saunders, of this city, while out riding on "Ten Mile Creek," called at the house of Judge Bell, (who seemed in good health) for a little chat, as an old acquaintance. After some coversation, Judge B. remarked to Mr. S., "that is a fine pistol you have there," and took hold of it to examine it, as Mr. Saunders supposed. But instead of so doing, stepped behind the door and shot himself through the chest, just above the heart. Judge Bell lived about an hour, but left no trace to the cause which induced him to commit this rash act.

ROBBERIES AND ROBBERS, in spite of vigilantes and without the fear of the law, are frequent and troublesome about the new gulches. A company of "Hurdy Gurdy Girls" were robbed of $1,000 a few evenings since, at Blackfoot. Also a highway robbery was committed a few evenings before through the system of "garroting," so common of the east about ten years ago. The last named party lost $600, which probably will not be recovered. A man was arrested for the first robbery, but upon the announcement that it was the vigilantes taking him, a crowd of persons immediately gathered around, and the supposed vigilantes vamosed, leaving their prisoner to go "scot free." Where are officers of the law? and what are they drawing upon the public purse for?

INDEX.

THERE are twenty men to each women in Idaho Utah ought to pass over some of her surplus women to her northern neighbor.—Virgin'a Union.

We ain't got any surplus women out here, ain't got quite our quota of the dear creatures But what are here are all engaged. Besides, if we men folks wished it they wouldn't go away, wouldn't nohow we could fix it. What can we do, if the ladies will stick to us? Can't help ourselves—must grin and bear it. Can't help being extra handsome and attractive to the ladies. We supposed we were predestined to lean that way.—Salt Lake Telegraph.

"Our quota" is good! Quota to scrub around as slaves, to save hired girls' wages! Quota to play second, third, and dozenth fiddle to some decrepid "first wife's" mercenary whim! Shame on all such gallantry, degrading as that of "Digger Indians!" "What are here are all engaged." How so? As the cows in some poor pasture, eh? "Wouldn't go away, nohow we could fix it!" Then why is every one a "special policeman" spieing 'em by day and night, for fear they'd find the ghost of a chance to vamose? "Can't help it if the ladies will stick to us!" Yes, stick as "Spaniel dorgs" well broke in, being purps. The idea of a lady sticking to a fellow with a herd of other women, as such, is literally absurd! "We supposed we were predestined to lean that way," is the only true thing that you've said!

Telegraphic.

To the Vedette.—The Indians are again into us. The men that I started out and who rode sixty miles yesterday after 11 o'clock a. m., found the line destroyed in three places between Rocky Ridge and Three Crossings and repaired it. At the same time, some portion of the line was destroyed between Three Crossings and Sweetwater and by two Infantrymen who came through, I learn that the line is also torn down between Sweetwater and Platte Bridge.—making three different breaks at the same time; we have men in that section who will repair it immediately, if they can get fresh stock, which is a very difficult matter, as nothing but infantry, are at present placed at those stations. However, it is hoped we shall get at work by to-morrow noon.

OPERATOR.

ORTHOGRAPHY.—A late writer in speaking of the formation of the plural of words ending in ty, says: "If there be no vowel before the y, the plural ends in ies. For instance, the plurals of "pony," or "tidy," are "ponies," "tidies." But if there be a vowel before the y, the plural ends in ys. As an example, "money," "holiday," have as plurals, "moneys," "holidays," etc. There may be exceptions to this rule, but none occur to us at present. Money is sometimes pluralized as "monies," but not correctly, any more than "valley" makes "vallies," or "alloy" "alloies."

A GRAND JURY at Salem, Or., lately endeavored to bring odium on the Sunday law by indicting everybody in sight. They indicted ferrymen for carrying people over the river to church, and the deacons for collecting money with the contribution box, and were about to indict the preacher for noisy and barbarous amusements? But the funniest thing was that they prosecuted an editor for writing articles on Sunday, and had him convicted and fined twenty-five dollars.

BUSINESS LIVELY.—What with the travel east and west and the rush for John Day's and for Montana, our streets have lately presented a lively appearance. The stages are all running, full of passengers, in all directions. Large trains are almost daily leaving for the East, and immigrants from that direction line the road all the time.—Boise Statesman.

The "lively" part of that "business" seem to be in parties leaving, for somewhere else! So might "business" be called "lively" at the starting of a train of cars or the breaking up of a camp meeting.

EDWIN FORREST is said to be the only rich actor in the country. Most of our leading great actors have died in penury. Among these were the low comedians, Gates, Fisher, Yankee Hill, while in the ranks of tragedy there stands the name of Hamblin, the handsomest and most profligate man of his day. The same rule applies to managers. Simpson, who who ran the Park Theater for thirty years, Hamblin, who managed the Bowery for an equal period, and Mitchell, of the Olympic, all died poor. Wm. E. Burton left a property which immediately on his death was devoured by a lawsuit.

NEW THEATER.—Mr. Potter respectfully announces to the citizens of S. L. City, that he intends permanently to make this beautiful city his home, and, in order that he may follow his vocation, he purposes to erect a commodious and handsome Theater, a suitable location having been secured. He, therfore, invites all gentlemen favorable to merit, without distinction of creeds, to co-operate with him to erect a building that may be adapted to the uses of the art dramatique, the concert hall or the ball room, and for social gatherings. The cost of said structure will be $20,000—shares to number 100, at $200 each. Security is guaranteed on the building, with an interest of two per cent. per month, the money to be advanced by shareholders by ten per cent instalments, as the work progresses towards completion.

Office of Comptroller of Cur'cy
Washington, June 23d, 1865.

WHEREAS by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that "The First National Bank of Nevada," in the City of Austin, in the County of Lander, and State of Nevada, has been duly organized under and according to the requirements of the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to provide a National Currency, secured by a pledge of U. S. bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved June 3d, 1864, and has complied with all the provisions of said Act required to be complied with before commencing the business of Banking under said Act.

Now therefore I, Freeman Clarke, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that "The First National Bank of Nevada," in the City of Austin, in the county of Lander and State of Nevada, is authorized to commence the business of Banking under the Act aforesaid.

In testimony whereof, witness my hand and seal of office, this twenty-third day of June, 1865.

Duty.

When Treason lifts its murderous hand,
And strikes against a Nation's life,
Enlists the Nation for the strife,
The fireside of the peaceful cot,
The bivouac within the trench,
Are camps but more or less remote,
With noble parts assigned to each.

To save the Nation's life it needs
The aid of every hand and heart—
If not by manful thoughts and deeds,
Then in some manner not your part;
So, when the roll shall be revealed,
Each answers to his name with pride;
Whether he's hero in the field,
Or patriot at the fireside."

Some hearts may only feel a thrill
At thoughts for which another bleeds;
Some souls may only nurse the will
Which in another grows to deeds;
By chance they dare instead of us—
By chance we scatter praise and flowers
On others' graves; Fate rules it thus,
Or they might scatter them on ours.

The will is noble as the deed;
'Tis doomed that some stand idly by
With breasts as brave as those that bleed,
And hearts as true as those that die;
But equal fame has death or life
For those who share a common lot—
Who fills the field or braves the strife,
He each, pray God, a patriot!

WE are enabled to state positively that all the jokes relating to crinoline are not used up. For instance: Why do ladies wear such extraordinary things as crinoline? Because all the heavenly bodies move in eccentric circles.

An Exchange publishes a "Tribute from Across the Sea," which ends with the following "eloquent remarks":

"America thine is a glorious future!
The scroll of thy destiny now is unrolled:
Lift high thy banner and fearlessly onward,
The extent of thine influence can never be told."

7.30 LOAN.
Third Series.
$230,000,000.
The undersigned, the General subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent. interest per annum, known as the 7.30 LOAN.
These notes are issued under date of July 15, 1865, and are payable three years from that date in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into
U. S. 5.20 Six per Cent.
Gold bearing Bonds.
The Bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum to their value, according to the rate levied upon other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.
The interest at 7.30 per cent, amounts to
One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents per day on a $100 note.
Ten cents " " " " $500 "
Twenty cents " " " " $1,000 "
One Dollar " " " " $5,000 "
Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.
The notes of this Third Series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent., instead of 7 3-10th's currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency on to July 15th, at the time when the subscribe.
The delivery of the notes of this third series of the seven thirties will commence on the first of June, and will be made promptly and continously after that date.
The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.
The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent. in currency. This is The only Loan in the MARKET,
Now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the Great popular Loan of the People.
Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.
In order that citizens of every town and section of country may be offered facilities for taking the Loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which the receive orders.
